Talk to your teen about vaping’s dangers

E-cigarettes are wildly popular among kids. But no matter what you’ve heard, they’re not safe for kids to use.

Kids’ brains are still developing. Many e-cigs contain nicotine, which can hurt young brains. Nicotine is addictive too. And kids’ still-maturing brains make them more vulnerable to addiction.

The nicotine in e-cigs can also make it harder for kids to concentrate and learn. What’s more, e-cigs contain other harmful chemicals. When kids vape, they breathe in tiny particles that can harm their lungs.

Time to talk

This is why it’s so important to talk to your child about just how risky vaping is. But make it a conversation — not a lecture. If you lecture, your child might stop listening.

And your conversation doesn’t have to be a one-time thing. You can keep talking.

Not sure what to say?

Then you might try something like this: “Your brain is still developing. And lots of e-cigs have nicotine. That’s the drug that makes regular cigarettes so addictive. Nicotine can mess with your brain development.”

Or try this: “Whether you get nicotine from an e-cig or a regular one, it’s still risky. I’m not trying to scare you. But I want you to have the facts. I just want you to be healthy.”

Thinking about e-cigs? Think again

Vaping, or using e-cigarettes, may seem harmless. But it’s far from it.

A few things you should know before you try it out:

• E-cigs contain nicotine. That’s the addictive chemical that hooks people on smoking.
• The high amount of nicotine in e-cig cartridges poses a poisoning hazard. That’s something to think about if you spend time around kids.
• Teens who try e-cigs may be more likely to use tobacco later. In fact, e-cigs are now the most commonly used form of tobacco among youth in the U.S.
• Some research suggests that e-cigs may be less harmful for smokers than traditional cigarettes when used as a complete replacement. But other studies have found that both e-cig vapor and e-cig devices can contain harmful chemicals.

Sources: American Lung Association; National Institute on Drug Abuse; U.S. Food and Drug Administration

Talk to your doctor if you want to quit smoking. He or she can steer you to products that have been proven to help. E-cigs remain a risky habit and not the best way to stop smoking, if that’s your goal.

Making a positive impact: WIC in the real world

Submitted by Alyssa Dicker, Bureau of WIC, student intern from Millersville University

Thankful. That’s the word Aimee, from Coopersburg, uses to describe the 11 years her family has been enrolled in the WIC program.

Aimee is the proud mother of six children, ranging from 6 months old to 11 years old, including a set of twins. WIC has been helping her family ever since their first child and has been a staple in their life and their family’s overall health and nutrition.

As busy moms like Aimee know, life only gets busier with each child.

“Though I have six kids, each is different, and it’s helpful to have people who studied nutrition to help you out. At the appointments, it’s especially helpful to have guidelines to help your child stay on track,” Aimee says.

She’s grateful WIC monitors each child individually, so they not only get nutrition information, but specific healthy foods for each child. Aimee appreciates how the nutritionists help her set goals, cook creatively, understand the impact of too much sugar and replace unhealthy options with healthy ones.

To learn more about WIC, go to pawic.com or call 1-800-WIC-WINS (1-800-942-9467).
Being an experienced parent, Aimee knows her teaching is only as good as her example. With help from WIC, Aimee can confidently model healthy eating habits for her children. She knows if she doesn’t eat well, her children won’t either. The nutrition advice goes a long way in their household, but it’s just the beginning of why Aimee is thankful.

Aimee’s 6-month-old has allergies and needs a specific type of formula, which is difficult to obtain. With a doctor’s note, Aimee was able to get the formula at WIC, and it is now shipped directly to her home. She was also glad to have WIC when her husband was discharged from the Army and they went from a full-time salary to unemployment while he looked for a new job.

“We had to learn how to budget our food, but WIC made it so that we didn’t need to budget certain food items,” says Aimee.

A strong partnership

Aimee recognizes that WIC cares about moms like her. Since nutrition plays a vital role in overall health, WIC partners with moms to help them maintain healthy pregnancy and postpartum weights so they can feel their best — both physically and emotionally.

Despite her strong support system at home, Aimee is glad WIC nutritionists ask if moms are content, especially since many are dealing with postpartum depression.

“WIC helped remind me to take care of myself. If I can’t take care of myself, I can’t take care of others,” says Aimee.

With all the ways WIC helps and cares about Aimee and her family, Aimee says that, more than anything, she is grateful.

“WIC is a community of people helping children grow and be healthy; we’re thankful. I don’t expect anything, but I’m thankful they’re there because they care. It’s great they’re here for moms who need it,” says Aimee.
At Aetna Better Health, we care about the mental and physical health of your child. Did you know that all children should be tested by their doctor for developmental delays at ages 9 months, 18 months and 30 months and be tested for autism at ages 18 and 24 months? It is important that these screenings take place at certain ages during your child’s development.

Doctors and nurses use developmental and autism screenings to tell if children are learning basic skills when they should, or if they might have problems. These screenings can help track developmental milestones and are made up of a series of questions or checklists for the parent to answer. They ask questions about motor skills (for example, crawling, standing, etc.) and social skills (for example, speaking and playing with other children).

They are normal, preventive screenings that every child should receive when they are young. These can be done at your child’s well-child exam.

If a developmental delay or an autism diagnosis is made, your doctor can assist you with getting the help that your child may need. With this help, children with developmental delays or autism can grow, learn and thrive.

If you have any questions or concerns about your child’s development or behavior, you may always talk to your child’s doctor.

You may also ask for additional screenings to be done. Your doctor might request additional screenings if your child is at risk. Some factors that may make your child at risk include being a premature baby or having a brother or sister with autism.

Be prepared with an advance directive

Staying healthy is a goal we all want. However, sometimes things happen all of a sudden. It’s always good to prepare for things we don’t expect.

Advance directives help you be prepared. Advance directives are instructions about your medical care if you are not able to make those decisions. An advance directive becomes your voice when you can’t say what you want or speak for yourself. Advance directives can also say who makes medical decisions for you when you can’t.

There are two kinds of advance directives:
• A living will is a document that says what medical care you want or don’t want. It is used in the event that you are not able to speak for yourself.
• A health care power of attorney is a legal document that says who can make medical decisions for you.

It is also used when you are not able to speak for yourself. For more information about advance directives, just visit our website: aetnabetterhealth.com/pennsylvania.

New technology for medical procedures

We want to make sure our members get safe, up-to-date, high-quality medical care. We have a team of doctors who review new health care technologies. This team decides if the new procedures and methods should become covered services. We don’t cover technologies, methods and treatments that are still under research.

To decide if a new technology will become a covered service, we:
• Study the purpose of each technology
• Review medical literature
• Look at the impact and benefits a new technology could have
• Develop guidelines on how and when to use the technology

Is your child moving from pediatric to adult care?

You’ve seen your child pass many milestones. Now he or she is nearing adulthood. And there’s a milestone coming up you may not have thought about. Your child will need to switch from pediatric to adult care — and may need to find a new doctor.

This change should occur between the ages of 18 and 21. You can help your child prepare by making sure he or she knows the answers to these questions:

• What kind of health insurance do I have?
• Do I know my medical history?
• What medicines do I take and why?
• Am I allergic to any medicines?

We have trained professionals on staff to help you. We’ll work with you to get the right care for your child’s special needs.

Protecting sexual health

Couples should always feel safe talking about sex. People in a relationship should feel safe asking their partner to use condoms. Using condoms is the best way to prevent a sexually transmitted infection (STI). If a partner refuses to use condoms, they are at risk for spreading an STI. If an STI is not treated, it can cause serious health problems.

One in five women being abused by a partner report that they were forced to have a baby. Some said their partner hid their birth control pills or poked holes in condoms. Others said their partner said things to make them feel scared to use birth control. Forcing someone to have a baby is never okay. It is a sign of an unhealthy relationship.

If you are with a partner who wants to have a baby and you don’t, there are some forms of birth control that are easy to hide.

- Plan B/emergency contraception
- Depo Provera
- IUD
- Nexplanon

Make sure you talk to your doctor about which birth control option is best for you. Remember that none of these will prevent an STI. If you are worried about STIs, talk to your doctor about getting tested. If your partner is making you feel unsafe or forcing you to have sex before you are ready, use these resources to find help:
